Have you ever been retained as a consultant to develop a turnaround plan for a healthcare organization?

No, I have not. Α.

- Describe for me if you would the Q. nature of the engagements that you have had with healthcare organizations, apart from serving as an expert in legal proceedings?
- Sure. Well, there's been a number Α. of them over the years, many of them are related 14 to valuations of healthcare entities for a 15 number of different purposes. Typically it will 16 be with an acquisition or a divestiture or a 17 merger of a healthcare entity that they want to 18 have a valuation performed and in connection 19 with that I also get involved in working with 20 either the management or the board in analyzing 21 the transaction, analyzing the financial impact 22 of the transaction, things like that. I have 23 also done a number of what I would refer to as 24 fairness reviews for attorney generals 25

Robert Bruce Den Uyl own, it could be the acquisition of another hospital, it could be just advising them that certain other internal actions might be wise or they need to slow down in some other activities that they are undertaking, say capital programs or something like that.

- Q. Do you consider yourself an expert on the governance of healthcare organizations?
- I'm not sure how exactly you mean governance, maybe I can ask you to define that.
- Do you consider yourself an expert on how boards do or should perform their supervisory responsibilities in the context of healthcare organizations?

MS. MEADEN: Objection; vague.

- What I would, in answer to your question and in some areas I may not get involved. When it comes to helping boards or advising boards take action with respect to their financial matters, that's something I have been involved with and do consider myself somewhat of an expert on.
- Do you consider yourself an expert Q. on the processes and procedures that boards

Robert Bruce Den Uyl throughout The United States regarding healthcare transactions where a not-for-profit healthcare entity is being purchased by a for profit entity.

- The fairness review again is relating to the fairness of the valuation?
- The fairness of the consideration A. received, yes.
- Is it fair to say that your primary expertise in this area relates to the valuation of healthcare organizations?

MS. MEADEN: Objection.

- Certainly valuation is one area and then all the financial advice that may be a part of that, or even financial advice separate and apart from a valuation. I've advised healthcare companies or institutions regarding financial issues that they may face.
  - What type of financial issues? Q.
- Well, for example, if a healthcare Α. institution is having financial difficulties I have talked to them about what some of the options might be that they could undertake. It 24 25 could be a divestiture of a hospital that they

Robert Bruce Den Uyl should follow in the course of fulfilling of their fiduciary duties to the entities they supervise?

MS. MEADEN: Objection; vague.

It sounds like what you're asking is more of legal processes than fiduciary responsibilities, that's certainly not what I would be involved in. If it relates to a financial issue then I may provide advice as to how the board might want to proceed or whatever issues they may choose to consider.

MS. MEADEN: Can we go off the record.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record, the time is 9:33.

(Off the record.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back 18 on the record, the time is 9:34, the tape is 19 20 rolling.

Mr. Den Uyl, do you consider Q. yourself an expert on the structuring of covenants in debt instruments?

MS. MEADEN: Objection.

Well, your question is specific on A.

It was mostly what you read out of Modern Health Care and what you picked up on the Internet for company websites.  7 Q. From time to time, did you look at look at care in internet websites about any AHERF entities, if you recall?  9 A. I don't recall even if AHERF had a website at that point in time. This was '98. I don't recall with the point in time. This was '98. I don't recall if they had one, and if they had, they would not have put financial information out there anyway, because they were not-for-profit. Most nof-for-profits put very little, if any, information on the Web regarding financial condition.  18 Q. What kinds of information sources did you consult from time to time to learn about the AHERF entities while you were responsible for them?  22 A. They might have had the officer's compliance certificates. There was a compliance memo which I think they had to do quarterly. They would have had the spreads of the financial statements, and if there was a legal documentation file, I don't recall whether it was part of the credit files or whether it was over the loan operations area. I don't recall how PNC did that, but my focus was on financial statements. We as I said, we look at trends, we obviously pay attention to quarterly statements, but we don't have the third-party validation of the financial statements and the reliability on that quarterly statement.  Do you know whether PNC required quarterly financial statements to be provided to it by the AHERF entities?  I believe they did. I can't testify for a fact they did. My recollection is that they did.  Was it standard practice at PNC, to your knowledge, for quarterly financial statements to be provided to PNC from various credits?

And you said those were documents that were created using the financial statements provided by various entities, is that right?  Yes, sir. Banks take the financial statements provided by borrowers, and they have a certain format in which they put the financial information. It's reasonably consistent amongst banks, but it's not necessarily equal. That document those sheets are just numbers, basically, and it's called a spread sheet.  Spreads, that's how everybody refers to them.  And did you mention that the spreads for the AHERF entities were contained within the AHERF credit files?  They should have been as a matter of practice.  I think you mentioned that the spreads were created by using some type of proprietary
